

As a school bus technician, I play K-LOVE in my shop, keeping me focused and in good spirits. Many of my drivers keep their radios tuned to K-LOVE for the encouragement and positive music. Loss of this station would be detrimental, removing one of the very few tools that the drivers (and me) have to help off-set a tough day. It's important to have the opportunity to let a "busy" or "full" mind relax without "replaying" problems or troubles from the day with no real resolution. Long hours for the kids on my equipment means they have an excess of time on their hands to let their thoughts drift into unprofitable venues. If you have any doubts about the value of K-LOVE to this nation, let alone my community; spend a moment listening to some of the mean-spirited, unwholesome, selfish music that many are soaking up today.
